WORD OF THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

MORE POWER TO CAMELEON'S BENEFICIARIES !

Our programs being stable and running smoothly, our team developed extra efforts this year to empower our beneficiaries. New cluster meetings are now organized every quarter with the parents and the girls of the After-care program who are spread all over Panay and Negros. Those new meetings not only allow us to have a closer monitoring on the children but they also give the parents an opportunity to share their concerns with us and with their fellow parents in handling their children. By reaching them more often and collectively we allow them to express themselves and eventually find solutions together.

The two recently organized groups composed of beneficiaries coming from the Rehabilitation program and the Community Development program became very active in helping us in our prevention campaigns: the Voice of CAMELEON's Children "VCC" on Child rights and the CAMELEON Youth Health Advocates "CYHA" on teenage pregnancies. After being trained on their respective topics and also equipped with some specific tools like the forum theatre and public speaking, those highschool and college students have developed a lot of energy and creativity this year to reach out other youth in the community and spread prevention messages.

Lastly, for the first time 50 former beneficiaries came back from Manila, Cavite or Boracay... during our last summercamp to share with the present beneficiaries their experience in CAMELEON. They gave heartwarming testimonies of their challenges and successes and committed during a moving but simple ceremony around a bonfire to help CAMELEON as much as they can. All those empowered beneficiaries are our pride since they are proving that aside from the personal rehabilitation, students can also give back to their community what they have received from CAMELEON. This is a message of hope to all our stakeholders from the staff to our board members and also our sponsors that rehabilitated vulnerable children can become assets for an organization, a community and a even country! More power to them.

Sabine Claudio

PEOPLE OF CAMELEON

THE FOUNDRESS:
LAURENCE LIGIER

In 1997, after spending several years in the Philippines studying the status of vulnerable children, Laurence Ligier, French National, founded Cameleon Association in Iloilo province. Her ambition was to rescue and rehabilitate the most vulnerable girls of the region. In partnership with the city of Passi, she opened the first center to accommodate girls victims of child abuse. Settled in France since 2004, she continues to fight for CAMELEON Philippines by developing network of supporters all around the world and to input her vision in the programs. Laurence Ligier has received the Philippines Presidential Award for her contribution to the development of the Philippines as well as the French National Order of Merit.

“Many children around the universe only ask for love, care and understanding. However, many of us are forced to deal with big and painful problems... I am proud to be one of those who luckily entered CAMELEON Association. Since I arrived, I did many achievements at school and in the center. I gradually forget my problems in life. I also learned how to be independent and responsible. For me, CAMELEON is the best! They’re always by my side, especially in times of trouble. But it doesn’t make me feel weak, on the contrary, life here taught me to be strong in facing and fighting life challenges... This big opportunity motivates me to stand and fight for my future.”

Gracia, In House girl

EDUCATION

“My admission in CAMELEON has brought a lot of positive changes in my life. The various activities like circus, group dynamics, skills trainings, individual and group counsellings among others helped me overcome my shyness and eventually developed my self-confidence. Being a sexual abuse survivor is really traumatic but I was able to successfully overcome it through several psychological and psychiatric sessions, along with my determination to move on to a better life. I am proud of where it lifted me up to. The three best things for which I am grateful to CAMELEON are the followings: First, it is not only an institution helping abused children but a family as well, who is there to support and guide me. Second, thanks to the educational assistance that I received, I was able to continue my studies. Lastly, CAMELEON has become my reason to strive hard in my studies, I want to become a Social Worker someday and be an advocate to others. I am proud to be a CAMELEON beneficiary and having CAMELEON is the biggest blessing in my life.”

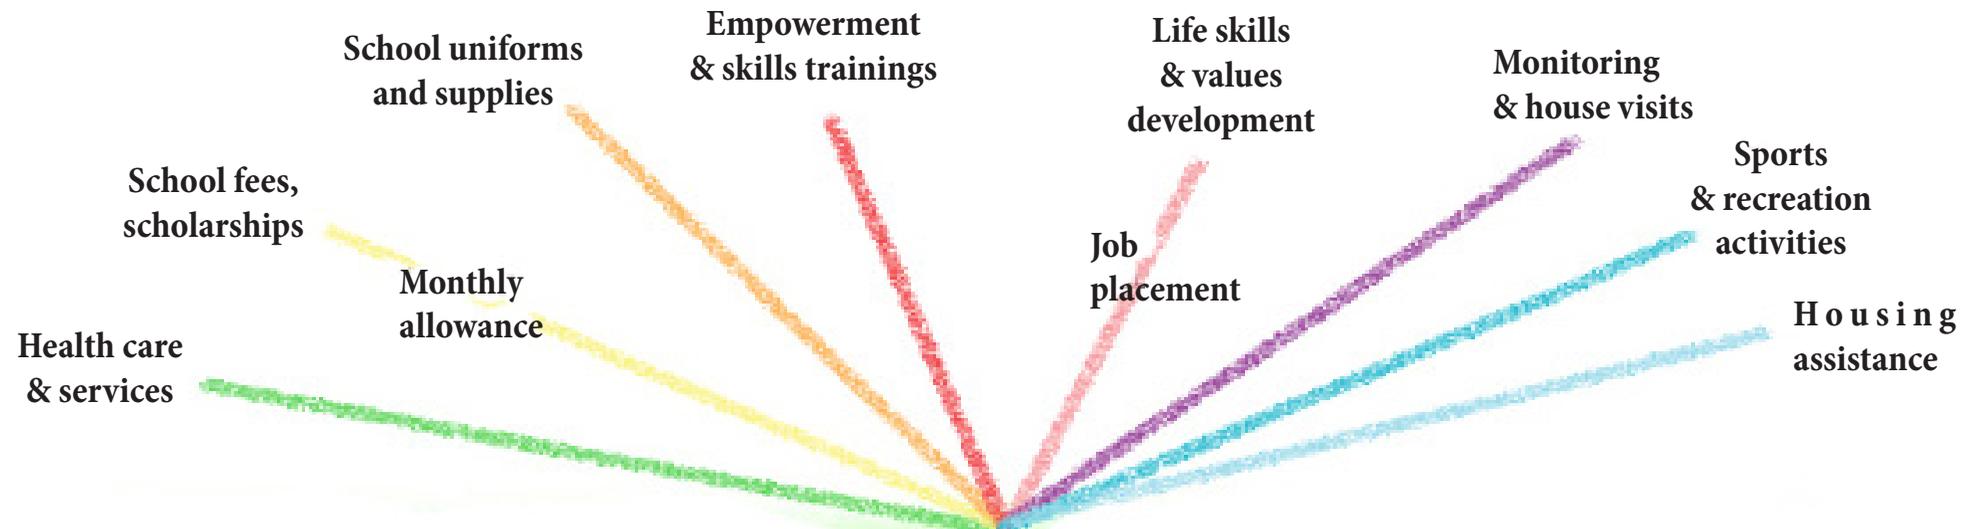

Kimberley, After-care girl.

Kimberley has been under the program and services of CAMELEON for almost 7 years. She's now an active member of Voice of CAMELEON's children (VCC), a group of CAMELEON beneficiaries trained to safeguard child's rights.

It aims at improving both social and economic situations not only of the children but also of their families for them to become self-reliant and productive members of their communities. Educational assistance is mainly provided to the 310 sponsored children, along with:

IAN JAY'S STORY

In 2010, thanks to his outstanding results at school, Ian Jay integrated CAMELEON's Community Development Program. After graduating from high school with excellence, Ian Jay enrolled in a Bachelor of Science in criminology. After his father's death in 2013, Ian Jay took the patriarchal role encouraging his family to stay strong. Ian Jay managed to work and study at the same time, and even committed some of his time in advocating child's rights along with the Voice of CAMELEON's Children (VCC). To increase their income, his mother was given chickens and tools to learn how to do massage. Ian Jay successfully graduated from college in March 29, 2016 and received a medal and a certificate for his sport outstanding results. Last December, with the financial support of his mother and CAMELEON, he was able to pass the exam and is now a professional criminologist.

VOLUNTEERS

All throughout the year, volunteers from France and other countries came to CAMELEON for a couple of months to complete the Filipino team and share their knowledge.

Advocacy, journalism, communication, dance, art therapy, theatre, circus, sports ... they brought all those skills to the girls and the association!

LIESBETH'S EXPERIENCE

"I spent 10 weeks in the rehabilitation center to make an impact study on how circus and dance influence the personal reconstruction process of girls victims of sexual abuse. I also gave dance lessons and participated in the creation of the girl's annual show, in Robinsons mall. I saw the girls blossom and discover themselves during my dance lessons, throughout their concentration, sincerity and ability to let go. They showed so much attention, motivation and determination (...). They radiate tenderness, human warmth; evolving with them was pure joy.

This research made me live unique moments, either with the beneficiaries or the staff. It taught me how to react facing testimonies that relate severe trauma. (...) CAMELEON was the most enriching experience I had, notably because it impressed me on different levels – personal, social, academic and artistic. (...) As time goes by my desires are confirmed: I want to integrate a dance school and pursue my studies with a PhD in order to take part in associations just like CAMELEON, as professional dancer and searcher in dance-therapy. My experience in CAMELEON gave me determination, strength and trust to pursue on this track and give it a chance to exist."

"CAMELEON was the most enriching experience I had, notably because it impressed me on different levels: personal, social, academic and artistic."
